Lore Overview

The Demo takes place before TOP:Exclusion.

Before the events of TOP:Exclusion, The Higher One created the Trial World as a testing ground for the Trial system.

The Trial was not fundamentally created to determine whether a participant would pass or fail. Its purpose was to search for a valuable form of living being.

The Demo represents this Trial World.

At the end of the Demo, the result is presented through the perspective of the Trial, allowing the player to perceive the outcome as a form of selection.

After the Trial, The Higher One carries certain remnants from the Trial World into the events of TOP:Exclusion. These remnants are perceived as necessary to the formation of the Player Entity.

Sari, Thela, and Ueger are among the beings carried over from the Trial World into TOP:Exclusion.

Thus, the Demo and TOP:Exclusion are separate events, but they are connected through the Trial and the transfer of its remnants.

Therefore, Demo is the residue of Selection and TOP:Exclusion as the residue of Understanding
The Higher One is not presented as an absolute judge.
His role is to express his perception and allow the meaning of the Trial to be interpreted rather than directly defining its ultimate truth.

Trial of Perception:Exclusion

“This document reflects the idea of perception. Some parts may be interpreted differently depending on the reader.”

This game was developed from the question “How does perception shape the world?” reflected by these ideas:

Game’s lore: set in a “Trial” created by “The higher one” to experiment with the perception of living beings, observed by “the controlvers” via “alien observers” to see how Perception affected living beings through consequences that arose from living beings’ actions.

For example, helping someone may be seen as kindness or as manipulation, leading to different consequences

Game’s relevance:

Real developer ---> beyond “The residue” but give this game the freedom.

The residue -----> beyond “the higher one” and acted on duty to observe this world which only gained two authorities (1-Authority to create this universe 2-authority to maintain entity’s perception)

The higher one -----> observed the world as duty from the residue and judge the world from perception so then influenced ending (meta layer)

Controlver -----> controls the observation system (And only them and some alien observers knew the higher one’s real name)

“The one” ---> The remains of a past controlver that disagree with the higher one and got renew as an observation tower that sent results to controlvers (but people worshipped it as “the god”)

“The remnant” ---> The remains of the only former Controlver who deeply adore humans and give them forbidden power in an attempt to help them. but during the migration, he refused to comply despite being given the reasons behind it and was judged unfit to remain a Controlver. After being stripped of his status, he became vulnerable. The humans took advantage of his weakened state and killed him, leaving behind the sole entity known as “The Remnant.”

NPC -----> react to player from Perception levels (with the personal bias)

Player -----> The one who gets observed and played with the perception by action & reaction (that showed how the world reacted, which can also get mismatched)

This world is no ordinary world, but a world that was created by “the higher one” as a trial to select the valuable manifestations of living beings to survive as the next generation of living beings in the “New World” rather than to be the living beings that got cataclysmically destroyed, passed “the One”, perceived by alien observers and observed by Controlvers.

Hierarchy: Real Developer ---> The Residue ---> The higher one ----> Controlvers ----> alien observers (observed the world via “The one” as the remnant that possessed as a watching tower) ----> living beings (In this section, “The humans”) ----> Especially “The protagonist”.

Story:

Chapter 1:Player starts as protagonist in “Frial” , the village that exists just to portray human socialization & Perception. The Protagonist is also the lineage of a family that once served under alien observers so they will get “perception log”to maintained perceptions . And then the protagonist begins to learn the world and find what they truly wanted.

Chapter 1.5: The protagonist begins to learn about consequences from what they acted and received but the player, who knows?

Like one time, the protagonist helps someone in need from suffering. Later, rumors spread that the protagonist did it because he wanted others to trust him and give him good consequences, which reflected past consequences and perception.

By then, others, especially those close to him, begin to distrust him and give bad consequences.

But in reality? He never intended anything beyond helping, but intention starts to lose its meaning, and players start to slightly gain the core of the game.

Chapter 1.5-2: The protagonist starts to explore the world then finds an ancient tower that represents aliens technology which inside contains logs about civilizations that were once “The test subject” and get to interact with “Controlver”.

Chapter 2: and from now on the protagonist begins to notice something beyond the world but still doesn’t know what truth lies beyond this world, so they start to explore more and more.

Chapter 3:The protagonist start to realize something strange so consider to investigate it in the ancient ruins, and from the investigation, it leads to the interaction with “the higher one” that interested in the protagonist and the player from the way they acted and reacted, the higher one told that this is not a normal world that the player lived in. It is a world that is constructed to know about living beings’ perception and this arc is about the“humans” which are the next generation of living beings so the higher one asked “If you know this, you sure you can change the outcome?” By then, the protagonist feels overwhelmed by the harsh truth but what about the player? They started to notice or ignore it.

Consequences:By then, the result depends on player

If they choose to ignore:the game ends but still continues on with the message “So this is the outcome of your trial.” from the player’s perspective.

If they choose to notice:the game continues as normal.

So in all outcomes, the protagonist still remained unknown about what they do and why they do it.
As the game continues, players continue their story but they start to know that a fixed outcome doesn’t fix perception so how they gonna react. But the protagonist still remained unknown so in their perception, it feels as if everything happens by its own perception.

Conclusion: So you see, this document is also part of the theme:
“each reader may perceive it differently, just as characters in the game”

The world is referred to as a Trial by its inhabitants, though other entities may perceive it differently.
